The BETHEL OXFORD COUNTY CITIZEN

Volume XLVIII—Number 12 BETHEL, MAINE, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1942 Single Copy—FIVE CENTS

A WEEK OF THE WAR

War Production Chairman Nelson said man-hours now being put into military production could be doubled if all equipment involved were used 24 hours a day. He asked manufacturers for monthly reports to show how rapidly industry is being converted to war work, the degree of utilization of equipment and any factors interfering with maximum production.

The WPB reported 95 percent of radio and phonograph industry, which ceases civilian production April 22, will be completely converted to war work before June 30 Production of communication equipment needed by the military services is expected to exceed a rate of $125 million a month by the end of the year.

Chairman Nelson announced 31 regional conferences of labor and management representatives from prime contracting plants engaged in making guns, ships, planes, tanks and machine tools will be held during the next two weeks. The meetings will lay plans to meet or exceed the production goals announced by the President. The WPB ordered the production of domestic laundry equipment to be discontinued by May 15 so the entire capacity of the industry can be devoted to war production.

The WPB said during the three months following Pearl Harbor more than $72 billion had been made available for the war effort. Appropriations by Congress and additional funds made available through the RFC were larger than all the funds authorized for defense during the 18 months before the attack. The total for the 21 months amounted to almost $140 billion.

Rubber, Gasoline and Oil

President Roosevelt in a letter to State Governors proposed speed limits of 40 miles per hour be established through the country to conserve rubber. He also proposed the States enact regulations requiring frequent checking of tires to insure repair and retreading at proper times. The Office of Defense Transportation and Department of Justice offered their assistance to local business enterprises seeking to pool delivery services as a means of conserving trucks, tires and other equipment.

The WPB said deliveries of gasoline to service stations and bulk consumers in 17 Eastern States, the District of Columbia, Washington and Oregon will be cut by one-fifth beginning March 19. Service stations in the curtailment areas must limit their operations to a maximum of 12 hours in any one day and to a total of 72 hours a week except to provide service for certain essential civilian users. To conserve stocks of fuel oil in coastal areas, the Board curtailed installation of new fuel-oil burning equipment in the same States affected by the gasoline order. Price Administrator Henderson asked filling station attendants to impress on motorists the necessity for saving automobile anti-freeze for use next wniter.

Rationing

The Office of Price Administration announced men in the armed forces and those called for induction may sell their new passenger cars without restriction. The OPA placed used typewriters under a complete allocation program, prohibiting their sale until April 13, but authorizing unrestricted rentals under a 60-day price ceiling based on rates prevailing March 5. Allocations will be handled by existing auto and tire rationing boards.

Shipping

Maritime Commissioner Vickery reported the 1942-43 "Victory" ship construction program has been increased from 18 million to 20 million deadweight tons to produce 2,000 ships in two years. Admiral Vickery said U. S. ship production will be greater than all the rest of the world combined. The Commission's over-all program calls for 2,877 ships to be commissioned by the end of 1943. War Production Chairman Nelson congratulated 4,000 shipyard workers at the Bethlehem Shipbuilding yards at San Francisco who offered to donate a Sunday's work without pay in order to get maximum production of war vessels.

Air

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced expansion of its programs in order to train 45,000 men a year in elementary flight training instead of 250, and 30,000 men in secondary courses instead of 10,000 and to inaugurate training of 31,000 ground technicians annually. Simultaneously the training will be granted students eligible for appointment as aviation cadets. The Army Air Forces' first class of Flying Sergeants were graduated as military pilots. An Air Corps Officer Candidate School will be established at Miami Beach Fla., to train Air Corps enlisted men.

Army and Navy

Army Chief of Staff General Marshall said reorganization of the Army has reduced the General Staff from about 100 officers to 98 who will concern themselves primarily with planning of military operations. The War Department's Construction Advisory Committee and the Contract Negotiation Board were consolidated into the Construction Contract Board which will recommend and negotiate contracts awarded by Army Engineer Corps. Navy Secretary Knox announced Admiral E. J. King, Commander in Chief, U. S. Fleet, will also be Chief of Naval Operations. Admiral H. R. Stark was named Commander, U. S. Naval Forces operating in European waters.

The War Front

United States planes in one raid on Japanese shipping sank two Japanese ships and set four more on fire and beached one. In another action U. S. forces sank a heavy destroyer and put three large tankers and one aircraft carrier out of action. U. S. forces also sank three freighters and one passenger cargo ship, shot down five enemy bombers, and destroyed three Japanese-held airdromes in New Guinea. The Navy reported 12 United Nations' warships were lost in the battle for Java, including the U. S. cruiser Houston and U. S. destroyer Pope. Two U. S. destroyers and two freighters were lost in the Atlantic. Gen. MacArthur reported no activity on Bataan peninsula.

Civilian Defense

OCD Director and Federal Security Administrator McNutt outlined plans for temporary hospitalization of civilians injured as a result of enemy action. The plan provides all voluntary and governmental hospitals will serve as Casualty Receiving Hospitals and certain hospitals in "safe areas" will be designated as Emergency Base Hospitals. The program will be carried out by the OCD Medical Division in cooperation with the U. S. Public Health Service and State and local authorities. The OCD issued a booklet suggesting safety procedures for department stores during an air raid.

Prices

President Roosevelt, in a radio address, said the fight "against inflation is not fought with bullets or with bombs, but is equally vital . . . It calls for mutual good will and willingness to believe in the other fellow's good faith. . ." The Labor Department reported the average family's food bill jumped 0.5 percent between mid-January and mid-February. The Department said rents in many defense cities were raised during the last quarter of 1941 on as many as one in every eight rented homes. The Bituminous Coal Division of the Interior Department and the OPA said they are prepared to take whatever steps are necessary to prevent wartime inflationary prices for coal.

Priorities and Allocations

Purchases, sales and rentals of various types of new office machinery were halted by the WPB, except to persons possessing high preference ratings. The Board extended the ban on use of "bright work" to all types of motor vehicles and prohibited its use in replacement parts. Manufacture of bicycles was curtailed, and production of tire retreading and recapping equipment was suspended except on preference-rated orders. The Board directed canners to set aside for the Government considerable quantities of their 1942 pack of fruits and vegetables. Maintenance and repair of existing plumbing and heating installations in farms, residences, and office and apartment buildings was facilitated by a new order.

Changes in Selective Service Requirements

Recent changes in the teeth and eye requirements for induction into the Army will substantially increase the manpower contribution of the State of Maine to the Nation's fighting forces, it was announced today by Gen. James W. Hanson, State Director of Selective Service.

"Many Selective Service registrants who were deferred under the old Army standards will be able to qualify for full or limited military service under the new ones," Director Hanson declared. "Of registrants rejected because of physical conditions, approximately 20 percent were disqualified by former physical tests because of the the stipulated dental requirements and about 14 percent were unable to qualify because of eye defects. Many of these men can now be inducted for full or limited military service."

Formerly, the Director pointed out, the Army required that an inductee have a minimum of six masticating and six incisor teeth, three masticating opposing three masticating and three incisors opposing three incisors. The new dental requirement is merely ability to digest Army "chow." It states:

"For general military service in branches: Registrants who have no disqualifying physical defects except a lack of the required number of teeth as set forth in paragraph 31a, Mobilization Regulations 1-9, August 31, 1940, when, in the opinion of the examining physician, they are well nurished, of good musculature, are free of gross dental infections, and have sufficient teeth (natural or artificial) to subsist on the Army ration."

Eye Requirements now read:

"For general military service in all noncombatant branches: Registrants whose visual acuity is below 20|100 but not below 20|200 in each eye without glasses if correctible to 20|40 in each eye. (The actual possession of suitable glasses by an individual is not required for his acceptance under these standards.)"

In a memorandum announcing these new Army standards, National Headquarters, Selective Service System stated:

"It is, therefore, directed that all local boards reopen and consider anew the classification of all registrants classified in Class 1-B or Class IV-F by reason of deficiencies in teeth or eyesight."

SCHOOL DAYS — By DWIG

BETTER GARDENS URGED AT COUNTY CONFERENCE

The group of about thirty community leaders who attended the county Victory Garden Conference at South Paris last Wednesday, March 11, unanimously recommended that all farmers and village people who have been in the habit of having a vegetable garden should have a bigger and better garden than usual this year. By so doing they will be contributing toward winning the war by releasing food for our armed forces, the civilian population, and lease lend shipments. They will also be contributing toward the health of their own families by providing protective foods and the family budget will also benefit, releasing money to provide other necessities besides food and to buy defense savings bonds.

The group was equally unanimous in cautioning against the planting of war gardens by people who are not familiar with garden culture, or who do not have suitable land for a good garden. This practice, they believe, would not result in any substantial amount of food being raised and a good deal of seed fertilizer might be wasted that is needed for other purposes.

Considerable discussion developed regarding the storage and preservation of food for winter use. It was agreed that enough should be planted to provide plenty for this purpose and that considerable care should be exercised to can vegetable at such a stage in maturity and in such a way as to insure maximum palatability and preservation of food value. While it is probable that the supply of rubbers and tin cans will be ample, it will be advisable to place as many vegetables in cellar storage as possible. This emphasizes the necessity of storage facilities that are well ventilated and will maintain proper temperature and moisture condition.

Community gardens were discussed at considerable length and it was agreed that before any such project is undertaken, close supervision should be definitely arranged for.

Many of those present felt, however, that the emergency has not yet reached the point where community gardens are necessary and that the effort for the present at least should be directed toward better family gardens by those who have suitable land and sufficient knowledge to insure success.

William S. Plumer of Portland, district county agent, was the main speaker and before the discussion he outlined the need for more food and how it could be obtained most efficiently.

At the close of the meeting it voted to adopt the recommendations of the National Gardening Conference which were in general the basis for the discussion as outlined above, R. F. Blanchard, South Paris, was elected chairman of the group.

POINT OF VIEW

For different effects, try different viewpoints. Here a low camera position eliminated distracting objects in the background to accentuate the subjects.

MANY things go into the making of an appealing picture — and not the least important is point of view. You can simplify backgrounds, eliminate undesirable parts of a scene, control arrangement— all by moving left or right, forward or backward, or pointing the camera up or down.

Consider a picture of a person outdoors. Stand back several feet and you get a landscape view with a figure in the foreground. Stand only a few feet from the subject and you get an informal portrait with a minimum of background. In other words, if you want to feature a person—get close; if it is a landscape you want—stand back.

A straight-on front view of a person is all right at times. A diagonal, quarter view, or a side view, however, will usually yield a more appealing picture. Of course if there is a real reason for taking a front view, by all means take it.

Angle shots often result in dramatic pictures and they attract attention because of their unusualness. The illustration above, for example, was made with the camera at a low level, and pointed upwards. With the sky serving as a plain background, made possible by the point of view, the boy and girl "stand out" and become the principal interest in the picture.

Other subjects may be pictured better with the camera at a slight elevation, pointed downward. This angle is often helpful in showing details of subjects where the component parts need to be clearly separated.

The next time you're taking pictures, try shooting the same subject from several different viewpoints. Then compare the pictures. You'll readily see how a careful choice of viewpoint yields more appealing pictures.

VERSATILE HOMEMAKER TAKES PART ON PROGRAM

Oxford County homemaker, Mrs Cleora Adams, East Sumner will attend Farm and Home Week and will appear on several programs. She will give a foods demonstration, "canning chicken", with the assistance of Mrs. Marguerite Bartlett, East Bethel, Thursday, March 26, on the Farm Bureau Women's Volunteer Leadership Program. Mrs. Adams is an outstanding leader in Oxford County and has often spoken at Grange meetings, clubs and annual meetings.

Her versatility is best described by the following account of a visit to her home by the home demonstration agent, Miss Ethel A. Walsh:

"Mrs. Adams was coming from the henhouses as I trudged through the last few yards of drifted snow and was greeted by the two collie dogs. She had just fired the stoves and fed the 1400 baby chicks and the 1,200 laying hens which she raises for eating and hatching eggs.

"Some of the poultry she selects for canning. At one time, Mrs. Adams canned four to five hundred jars to sell commercially and even at present, with many other farm obligations, she finds time to fill some orders.

"Before our supper of home cured ham (which was once Bob's—her youngest boy's 4-H club pig), home made bread, bush cranberry sauce, fresh milk right from the cow, etc., Mrs. Adams showed me her collection of mosses; one of her many hobbies as a naturalist. There are over 200 kinds in her collection, some of which are the first ever found in Maine or in the United States. Mrs. Adams has many outdoor hobbies and knows all about the birds, flowers, trees, and shrubs. She used to teach nature studies in Washington County at Machias Normal School and has been a true companion to her five children whom she accompanies on mountain climbs and overnight camping trips.

"Mrs. Adams acquired her interest in butterflies from her mother Mrs. Edith DeCoster, who was known as the "butterfly woman" in Maine. I was fascinated by Mrs. Adams' photographs of the transformation of the milkweed butterfly", an unusual series of pictures which she took, showing the stages in which the caterpillar turns into a beautiful, graceful butterfly.

"After a delicious supper, we went into the front room where Mr. Adams, who has been ill the past few years, was anxious, as we all, to see the beautiful colored slides which Mrs. Adams took with her newly prized camera. Mrs. Adams will show her very professional looking pictures of farm life and Oxford County scenery at Farm and Home Week, Thursday afternoon

"Robert and Philip, the two youngest boys, were there to add their comments to the slides as they were projected onto the screen. Virgil, the oldest boy is a senior at Gould Academy and is proud to be the champion of Maine high school cross country skiers. Frances, the oldest girl is a stenographer in Concord, New Hampshire. As Bob lighted the oil lamp, it shone upon the picture of Persis, who is a registered nurse, now on her way across the ocean for foreign service.

THE EIGHTH ANNUAL A. M. C. INVITATION SKI RACE was held on Sunday, March 15th on the White Mountain National Forest's Wildcat Ski Trail. During Saturday night the trail was covered by an inch of new powder snow which greatly improved the trail and although icy in spots the trail was in good condition. Sixty racers, representing several Colleges and Ski Clubs ran in the race. The race was ran off very well and although there were numerous spills no one in the race was injured.

TWO ACCIDENTS occurred in the Pinkham Notch area on Sunday however. One occurred on the John Sherburne Ski Trail and one on the practice slope. If one recognizes his skiing ability and keeps himself under control to the limits of that ability many accidents can be prevented.

THE FIRST FIRE CONTROL TRAINING MEETING for the coming fire season was held at Littleton on Tuesday, March 17, 1942. This meeting was a fire dispatcher's training meeting, and was attended by fire dispatchers, Rangers, assistant rangers, relief dispatchers and members of the Supervisor's staff. Methods of dispatching, including all phases of the dispatcher's job were included in the training. With the basic methods of dispatching well in mind the dispatchers are now well equipped to apply their knowledge to the specific dispatching job on their respective districts.

OF ALL THINGS . . . . .

Some people always contrive to have something to worry about. And most of the time it's something that they can't help—or it doesn't concern them at all. Some of these folks are much perturbed lately about the colored soldiers who have been assigned to guard some of the railroad property hereabouts. It seems that some of our native citizens are impressed with the idea that they are much superior to these men who are serving their country, and nobody says they aren't doing a good job, and who's complexion was not of their choosing. Knowing some of these people who are inclined to believe the worst of these, or any other, tales in circulation, I surely don't see why they should feel themselves superior to anybody. . . . March marches on—with rain and snow and slush and some of the nicest weather you ever saw. Snow will soon be gone. Then there will be no excuse for these many loafing hours. Bare ground, longer daylight, and if you don't get that garden started early it's your own fault. Plan your garden now and plan to get busy later.

Office Efficiency Vital to War

THE above chart, released by the United States Civil Service Commission, shows the need for Federal stenographers and typists in gearing our nation to the war effort. The tremendous detail attendant upon arming the country has developed an acute demand for efficient office workers in both government agencies and plants manufacturing war materials.

At right, an officer in the Quartermaster Corps watches as the first of 1942's shipments of typewriters arrive in Washington. In addition to the half-million machines used in 1941 by Federal employees engaged in war work, hundreds of thousands of additional typewriters are being hurried to the government and defense plants to implement manufacture of war weapons. These particular machines shown may go to soldiers and sailors being trained to use them in the field and in communications on the sea.

King's Chef Saves Sugar in Recipes

TO further aid in conserving sugar, J. P. Morgan, Chef Instructor, Canadian National Railways, who was chef to Their Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth during their North American tour, has prepared a number of sugarless recipes substituting maple sugar, corn syrup, molasses. The new recipes, already introduced to dining car patrons on the Canadian National, include muffins, maple butter, gingerbread, cup custard, cake and cake fillings. Here are some of Morgan's favorite new "sugarless" suggestions:

Chef Morgan

Golden Corn Cake

¼ cup butter
½ cup molasses
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 cup corn meal
1 cup flour
¾ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder

Cream the butter, add molasses and egg yolks. Gradually add milk alternating with dry ingredients mixed and sifted. Beat thoroughly. Fold in whites of eggs beaten stiff. Bake in buttered cake pan 30 minutes at 350° F. Makes 2 8-inch layers.

Maple-Fruit Filling

Boil one-half pint maple syrup with beaten yolks of 4 eggs in double boiler until mixture thickens. Stir constantly. Remove from fire, add 1 tablespoon butter and beat until cool. Stir in 1 cup citron, currants and chopped nut meats which have been flavored with 1 tablespoon sherry and ½ teaspoon grated nutmeg. Spread between layers of cake and ice with maple frosting.

Soft Molasses Gingerbread

1 cup molasses
⅓ cup butter
1¾ teaspoons soda
½ cup sour milk
1 egg
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons ginger
½ teaspoon salt

Put butter and molasses in saucepan and cook until boiling point is reached. Remove from fire, add soda and beat vigorously. Then add milk, egg well beaten and remaining ingredients mixed and sifted. Bake 15 minutes in small tin having pan two-thirds filled with mixture.

Chef Morgan will gladly furnish other choice sugar-saving recipes. He may be reached in care of Canadian National Railways, 360 McGill St., Montreal, Canada

Greek Airforce Flies Again

A NEW GREEK FIGHTER squadron, formed since the fall of Greece and equipped with new Hurricane fighter planes, has gone into action against the Germans and Italians in the Battle for Libya. These pictures, the first to reach the United States, show (top) the squadron's pilots lined up for inspection, (bottom, left) one of the pilots, ready to take off for a flight against German planes, and (bottom, right) the squadron leader, equivalent of a captain, with his sleek Hurricane, which bears the insignia of the re-born Royal Hellenic (Greek) Air Force.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

"We are now shutting down. Goodbye until better times. Long live the Queen!"

These courageous, defiant words were the last spoken to the world by the official Dutch broadcasting station at Bandoeng, the city which was made headquarters for the Allied command in the Netherlands East Indies, after Batavia was lost. At the time they were spoken the Japanese troops were in the suburbs, and it was clear that Java, one of the most important of Pacific positions, was secure in the harsh hands of Hirohito's brown legions. Another all-important area had fallen to the enemy—an enemy which in only three months of war, had made incredible progress. In those three months, the United Nations had taken major defeat after major defeat. All they had to comfort them was the knowledge that the enemy had paid a big price in men, ships and materials of war.

The story of the loss of Java is the old story the story that is perfectly expressed in the phrase, "too little and too late." The Dutch defenders fought extremely well. So did the handful of Americans and Anzacs who were with them. The United Nations' naval and air supremacy possessed by the defenders at the beginning of the action, was soon lost. Japan is said to have thrown 4,000 planes, the larger part of her entire air force into battle. The little Dutch fleet was almost entirely destroyed in brave and daring operations against a far larger, more powerful Jap fleet. On the ground, invader troops outnumbered the defenders tremendously, and their equipment was far better. Japan landed seven to ten divisions, of about 15,000 men each, on the island. Most important of all, the defenders received only a tithe of the aid they expected from the United States.

Where will Japan strike next? The Australians expect they will be invaded, as well as subjected to air attack, and are preparing for a last ditch stand. There are rumors that Hitler is working to persuade the Japanese to aid him by attacking Russia through Manchuria. Many an authority is convinced that an attack on the West Coast of the U. S. is well up on the Jap military calendar—an attack that might even assume the scope of an attempted invasion. Whatever happens, it is clear that the United Nations will suffer more hard blows unless and until it is possible to send gigantic quantities of planes, weapons, supplies and men to the key points in the Pacific. The last few months have provided a terrible example of the futility and waste of fighting battles with only "token" forces.

Here in America, production is getting into high gear. But all the planes and tanks and guns in the world are useless unless they can be sent to the battlefronts. Thus, our war problem is largely a shipping problem. It is clear that ship output must be speeded up fast. It must do more than offset the toll taken by enemy submarines and surface raiders—it must far exceed it. Estimates say that ten tons of war materials of various kinds must be shipped for every soldier in a completely mechanized unit. That indicates the colossal ship-building job we have ahead.

In this connection, it is significant that the enemy is concentrating his naval attacks on tankers. It is said that troop ships have been deliberately passed by submarines on the search for vessels which carry that basic sinew of war—oil. That is certainly logical. Exported air and naval strength must be accompanied by limitless quantities of fuel, if it is to be effective. Tanker losses so far have been dangerously high, and new production is not adequate.

The lesson is clear. We must have more efficiency and less politics. There must be harder, more productive work. No one need doubt the quality of United Nations' troops. They have demonstrated their valor time and again. They simply haven't been given the tools the job demands.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

KITCHEN THINKING

Never before has my kitchen looked so beautiful to me as it does this spring after an early cleaning. The curtains are freshly washed and ironed, the walls are newly painted, and the linoleum has a new coat of wax. Over the table the pots sparkle with cleanliness and the electric refrigerator is gleaming white. I sit here writing and looking around my small pleasant world still untouched by the shortages or privations of war. It will be hard to get linoleum like this, they tell me, in a month or two. Electric refrigeration will soon be off the market and copper pots are a luxury of the past.

I've always liked my kitchen. But now I see it for what it really is—a privileged room filled with the comforts and conveniences which the world's greatest industrial system produces in ordinary times. I know at last what a lucky woman I am to live in the U. S. A. in the 20th century.

Presently I go upstairs to make the beds. But it is such a warm day with sunlight pouring in at the windows. Perhaps it's time to put the heavy blankets away. I gather them up and take them downstairs and out to the clothesline. Suddenly I am aware of their beauty and softness and warmth. Pure virgin wool, they are lovely to handle and lovely to snuggle down under on a cold night. There won't be any blankets like this in the stores next year. Again I am struck with the quality of my possessions, no different from those of millions of other women up and down this great land.

We've been told all our lives how lucky we were in this country—how much more we had than other women. But we paid little attention to such remarks because we took our advantage for granted...72% of the world's automobiles; 50% of the world's radios; 34% of all the electricity and 50% of the telephones! So went the record.

But now that industry has taken on a more strenuous job than furnishing our homes and keeping us happy, we realize what we had. Housekeeping in this country is not drudgery. The lives of women living on moderate incomes have been blessed with leisure time and opportunity to go and do and be because our manufacturers have produced to lavishly, so practically, and so economically!

Now we're at war—and we are being careful of the many things we've heretofore used carelessly. We must make them last until industry can stop making armaments and go to work for us again. We are'nt complaining. We'll go without everything but the bare necessities in order to win this war. For only by winning it and continuing with an industrial system that is free and progressive can we be sure that generations to come will have as pleasant kitchens and nice, warm blankets!!

If It's Heavily Advertised It HAS to be GOOD

OUR BRAND of democracy was won for us, and is being held for us, by men who chose their own careers, owned big farms, built big factories, and did what selling was necessary to keep those farms and factories busy.

One of the biggest aids in mass selling is mass advertising. In the long run, it "polices" itself.

Advertising of poor products always fails. Only a first rate product, fairly priced, can stand the dazzling glare of national advertising. When you think of the heavily advertised soups, soaps, breakfast foods, mechanical refrigerators, automobiles, silverware, radios—you are thinking of the aristocrats among commercial articles.

We Call It

Romance

IT'S JUST a can of soup. But during a long lifetime, the man who made it found some way to advertise it. At first, just a sign over his little soup kitchen, a few newspaper ads, a few billboards. But as the advertising grew, so did the business.

Now the business employs thousands of workers, helps to support tens of thousands of retail clerks and transportation men, and gives the housewife a better, cheaper soup than she could prepare at home.

Back of every heavily advertised article is a romantic story of this kind—the kind of romance that built America.

Learning To Fall Down

The ambition of the young men shown above is to learn to fall down properly. They are embryo parachutists in the U. S. Army and the tumbling they are doing here is part of the hardening and suppling process they undergo before they qualify as Expert Parachutists by making jumps from airplanes with their 'chutes. The Army is now enlisting men between 18 and 30 years of age directly for the parachute troops from civilian life. This is a great opportunity for adventurous young men.
